A HOARD OF DENARII AND ANTONINIANI FROM THE VILLAGE OF KLISURICA NEAR PROKUPLJE (SOUTHERN SERBIA)¹

Abstract: The Klisurica hoard was discovered in 1986 in the village of the same name, situated on the Grebac mountain pass, on the southern slope of Mali Jastrebac, near Prokuplje. It consists of 1655 denarii and antoniniani, spanning the period from Vespasian to Trajan Decius. Numerous archaeological sites from the Roman period have been registered on the southern side of the Jastrebac massif and in the Toplica region, while the remains of a villa rustica to the south of the Klisurica village are the most important regarding our find. One of the most important central Balkan routes, the Lissus – Naissus – Ratiaria, which connected the Adriatic and the Black seas, used to pass this way. Considering the position of the site and conditions in the surrounding area, the owners of the villa and its inhabitants were undoubtedly farmers and cattle breeders, and were most probably the owners of the coin hoard.

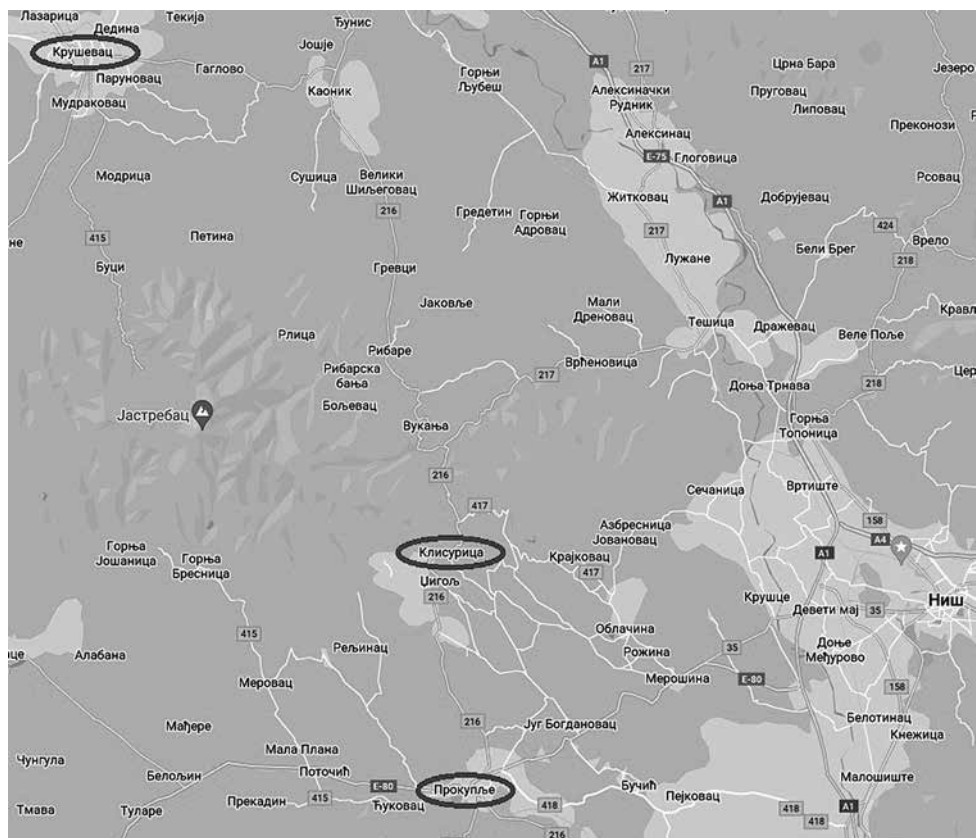

Key words: Roman Empire, coin hoards, Trajan Decius, Klisurica, Hammeum, Moesia Superior

The hoard of denarii and antoniniani from the village of Klisurica near Prokuplje was discovered in 1986 on the Grebac mountain pass, which separates the mountain massif of the Veliki and Mali Jastrebac. It was purchased for the National Museum of Serbia in 1987

1 The study results from the projects: Roman Coin Hoards from Serbia. Numismatic Collection of the National Museum of Serbia (B. Borić-Brešković) – Ministry of Culture of the Republic of Serbia and IRS – Viminacium, Roman city and military legion camp – research of material and non-material culture of inhabitants by using the modern technologies of remote detection, geophysics, GIS, digitalization and 3D visualization (M. and consists of 1655 denarii and antoniniani, spanning the period from Vespasian to Trajan Decius (Table 1).²

The village of Klisurica is situated on the southern slope of Mali Jastrebac and belongs to the Toplica region. It is 2.9 km away from the Grebac mountain pass where the Prokuplje-Kruševac road passes, and 15.5 km from Prokuplje, the present-day centre of Toplica (Fig. 1).

For the purpose of understanding the context of the find, we provide the basic overview of archaeological sites of the Roman period, registered on the southern side of the Jastrebac massif and in the Toplica region along this stretch, although the registered traces of habitation originate from a much more distant past.³

- 2 The hoard was deposited in a ceramic vessel, the fragments of which were acquired together with the coins. It was purchased from Zoran Petrović from the village of Klisurica, on the basis of a decision by the National Museum's Commission for Acquisitions and Expertise of Jan. 30th, 1987, and Report No. 55 of Feb. 11th, 1987. It is listed under number o.inv. 1976/1-1655.
- 3 For the earlier history of the Toplica region, cf. Кузмановић-Цветковић 1988, 11-14; Кузмановић-Цветковић 2006, 9-24, 27 with literature.

The arrival of the Romans in these regions and the formation of the province of Moesia,⁴ which encompassed the fertile region of Toplica with vast water and thermal potentials, together with the forested, ore- and water-rich mountainous hinterland, led to the intense urbanisation and Romanisation of the domicile population. Thanks to its natural resources, geographic location, strategic and trade interests, this area was included in the Roman network of roads early on and became an important trade hub.⁵ One of the most important central Balkan routes, the Lissus - Naissus - Ratiaria, passed this way, connecting the Adriatic and Black seas and was the shortest connection of Italy and the Adriatic with the Central Balkans and the Danubian region.⁶ Running from Naissus, the road continued to the south-west along Toplica, then followed the Kosanica River and, through Kosovo and Metohija, arrived at the Adriatic Sea, while the first three road stops in the Toplica valley were Ad Herculem (Žitorađa), Hammeum (Prokuplje) and Ad Fines (Kuršumlija), all of which most probably belonged to the municipal territory of Naissus.⁷

Various archaeological remains discovered in Prokuplje, like the Hisar complex, where the foundations of a Roman temple dedicated to Hercules were discovered on the archaeological site of Latinska Crkva, beneath and in front of the present-day medieval church, the testimony of which is a plaque with an inscription dated in the 2nd or 3rd century or, for example, an altar dedicated to Jupiter,⁸ built by Marcus Aurelius Marcianus, the consular beneficiary or stator of the legion I Italica, are incontestable proof of the historical importance of this town as the centre of Toplica during the Roman rule.⁹ The first known Roman facility in the area of Toplica along the mentioned road, after Žitorađa, was registered in the village of Berilje, and is identified as a villa rustica. Remains of a villa, parts of the thermae and a tomb from Late Antiquity were also registered in the village of Merovac, while Roman coins, including one republican denarius serratus were found in the vineyards near Kondželj. Roman bricks and coins were found in the area from Kondželj towards the village of Mađare, which is an indication of traces of a settlement or structure; coins and a bronze vessel were discovered near the cemetery in the Mađare village, while

4 The province of Moesia was formed in 14 AD and remained under the administration of one governor, together with Achaia and Macedonia, until 45 AD, when it was declared a separate province and placed under the management of an imperial legate of the rank of consul. It turned out during the time of Domitian that it was not possible to effectively protect the vast area from the confluence of the Sava and the Danube to the Black Sea, so Moesia was divided into two provinces: Moesia Superior and Moesia Inferior, in 86 AD, cf. Mirković 1968, 22.

5 Петровић 1976, 90, 103-106; Кузмановић-Цветковић 2006, 28; although a branch of a road that ran from Hammeum towards Scupi is recorded on the Pointinger Table, certain researchers, guided by the fact that no stations had been registered on this route, linked the crossroads at Hammeum with other locations, cf. Мирковић 1960, 253-254. Петровић 2007, 99-100 believes that it was not possible to reach a solution with this degree of exploration, although he did not exclude the possibility for one road to have led from Hammeum to the south, while Кузмановић-Цветковић 2006, 43-45 particularly indicate the Rgajski Grad and its structures which are analogue with the station Ad Herculem and the situation on the ground, which confirm that the branch of the road towards Scupi ran exactly from Hammeum.

a bronze lamp, dated in the 1st century, was found in Beloljin. Roman thermae, coins and traces of a water supply pipe were found in the village of Bace, and the building of the structure was dated in the 3rd century on the basis of these finds. Remains of two Roman baths were registered in Viča near a hot water spring, while the remains of a fortress¹⁰ were found on the Duvari hill, which dominates the middle course of the Toplica, above a mineral water spring.

In observing the Roman traces along the road next to the Toplica River, which we follow here primarily in the segment in the Prokuplje area, the registered Roman settlements on the slopes and at the foot of Mount Jastrebac, which gravitate towards this territory, are particularly important for the subject of our paper. Due to the fact that the area itself, and especially Mount Jastrebac, is insufficiently explored, and that it is not possible to have a more comprehensive insight into this historical period, we wish to supplement the archaeological map of the Toplica area by publishing the important monetary find from Klisurica. Besides the remains that are spread in Krnji Grad, in the area between Velika Plana and Bresnica, or the fact that the remains of structures for ore flotation are visible near Donja Bresnica, along with traces of mining in several locations, considering the ore-rich Jastrebac,¹¹ the information that is particularly important for us is the detail connected with the two villages located on the southern slope of Mali Jastrebac: the village of Klisurica, in the immediate vicinity of which, on the Grebac pass, the hoard of denarii and antoniniani was discovered and, not far from Klisurica, the village of Džigolj, from where one icon of Mithras originates (Fig. 2).¹²

10 About the numerous locations next to the road along the Toplica River, which indicate the importance of this communication route and the intensive habitation of this area, cf. Кузмановић-Цветковић 1988, 9-27 (review of archaeological sites of the Prokuplje municipality, from the pre-Roman period to the Middle Ages); Кузмановић-Цветковић 2006, 59-42.

12 Кузмановић-Цветковић 1995, 165-169.

In the village of Klisurica, the first village under Mount Jastrebac on the Prokuplje side, to the south of the village next to the present-day village cemetery, there are preserved foundations and the lower zone of the walls of an ancient structure, built with stone and brick. On the basis of the room with an apse, the locals called it the grounds of the church of St. Mary. In view of the fact that most of it is still under ground, it is assumed that this structure was a part of the complex of a villa rustica. Terracotta water pipes were unearthed during ploughing works, which indicates that the villa had running water and that the structure had to be supplied with water from the slopes of Jastrebac, while pieces of Roman, as well as early Byzantine and Slavic ceramics, were discovered in the fields above the cemetery. Considering the position of the site and the conditions in the area, the owners of the villa rustica and its inhabitants were undoubtedly farmers and cattle-breeders. The villa, suitably positioned near a busy road towards Naissus, from which, by way of the Grebac pass, one could also quickly reach the other side of Mt. Jastrebac, where there is evidence of significant remains of old mining, shafts and slag heaps, provides additional proof of the importance of this area in Roman times.¹³

The village of Džigolj, from where a marble icon of the god Mithras with a tauroctony scene originates, is located near Klisurica. It is the work of a local artist, dated probably in the end of the 4th century, and it is made from the marble extracted from the quarry in Berilje near Prokuplje. It is assumed that it served the adherents of this eastern deity, who might have been among the inhabitants of the villa in nearby Klisurica.¹⁴

The entire stretch of Toplica, although insufficiently reconnoitred, with the mining area in the hinterland and registered villae rusticae, would already confirm at this level of exploration, through the emergence of agricultural holdings, ore extraction, denser population and the development of commerce,¹⁵ the strategic importance of the communication that also encompassed Hammeum and which principally gained economic significance.¹⁶ Information about the large hoard of 13 The site was registered in 1982 during reconnaissance by the Institute for the Protection of Monuments in Niš and the National Museum of Toplica in Prokuplje. About the site and its purpose: cf. Кузмановић-Цветковић 1988, 17, Kat. 25; Кузмановић-Цветковић 1995, 164, 168-169; Кузмановић-Цветковић 2006, 46. About the sites from the other, Kruševac side of Mt. Jastrebac and the degree of their exploration: cf. Rašković 2022, who states that remains of a villa rustica were acknowledged on the Kale site on the Grebac pass, above the village of Vukanja, that a hoard of coins was discovered at the Gradac site above the village of Srndalje, while a large hoard of Roman silver coins was found in the immediate vicinity of the ancient site of Odaje in the Jablanica village. About the Jablanica Hoard, cf. Васић 1968, 63-82; Рашковић 2003, 32, 47-48; Васић 2015, 108-109.

14 The icon was found by a resident of Džigolj during the digging of a well in the yard of his house, who donated it to the Museum of Toplica in Prokuplje. Several stones that belonged to the temple were discovered, while the rest is covered in silt and inaccessible to this day, cf. Кузмановић-Цветковић 1995, 164-169; Кузмановић-Цветковић 2006, 46-47, 50. About the Jablanica Hoard, cf. Васић 1968, 63-82; Рашковић 2003, 32, 47-48; Васић 2015, 108-109.

15 About the work activities of the inhabitants of Toplica, cf. Кузмановић-Цветковић 2006, 48-50. The tradition of jewellery making flourished during the Roman period, which is proven by a rich hoard of gold and silver jewellery from Nova Božurna, with material chronologically dating from the pre-Roman period to the 3rd century. It is assumed to have been deposited in the 3rd century due to an immediate danger of war, cf. Кузмановић-Цветковић 2006, 50; about the study analysis of the hoard of jewellery from several aspects, cf. Jovanović 1999, 63-71; Popović 1999, 75-84.

16 About the communication routes constructed in the central Balkans at the start of the 1st century AD, moving from being primarily military in character to economic importance during the 2nd and 3rd centuries, cf. Петровић 2014, 135-136.

denarii and antoniniani having been discovered on the Grebac pass near the village of Klisurica, which is evidence of a significant flow of money over a longer time span, speaks of the great importance that this entire area had within the Roman Empire.

The Klisurica find is made up of 1655 specimens of Roman silver coins, consisting of 1341 denarii (81%) and 314 antoniniani (19%), spanning the period from Vespasian (70 AD) to Trajan Decius (250), and has the following composition:

Table 3 –Annual quotients and indexes in the Klisurica hoard

The coins of 20 rulers and their family members, spanning 181 years, are present in the Klisurica hoard. The coinage of Severus Alexander (25.56%) and Elagabalus (22.48%) constitute the majority, followed by issues of Gordian III (19.46%) and Septimius Severus (19.40%), while the coins of other rulers are present in far lower percentages (Table 2; Graph 1). When the content of the hoard is observed, one may conclude that thesauration began at the time of Septimius Severus and that older specimens were a relic of previous hoarding. When we follow the continuity of thesauration, the lesser presence of the issues of Caracalla from his sole reign, of Macrinus and Maximinus I (Table 2; Graph 1) does not deviate from their usual presence in hoards from the territory of the present-day Serbia. After analysing the ratio of issues of Septimius Severus with Caracalla's issues from the period of sole rule in the compared hoards, we observed approximately equal composition ratios.¹⁸ A lower intensity of thesauration is observed from the period of Philip I, whose issues, together with family members, appear in only 28 specimens, or 1.70% of the entire find (Table 2). In that, the majority of the present antoniniani (21 pieces) are those of the first three issues of the Rome mint, dated in the first half of his reign, while only one antoninianus of the 8th issue (Table 15) belongs to the later period (248-249). The hoard ends with one specimen of Trajan Decius (Cat. 1654), which could also be the consequence of the fact that the find is not complete.

¹⁷ The hoard index is 9.14 (1655 pieces / 181 years). For the dating of reigns, cf. Kienast 2010.

Somewhat different results have been obtained from an analysis of the annual inflow of coins into the Klisurica hoard (Table 3). This essentially refers to the issues of Elagabalus, for which the greatest annual inflow has been recorded (97.12). Issues of Gordian III (56.89) and Severus Alexander (32.53) follow with a significantly lower annual inflow. An unusually high annual inflow has been recorded for the issues of Maximinus I (18.18) and Balbinus (16), while that of Septimius Severus amounted to only 17.92. While comparing the data about the percentages and annual inflow in the Klisurica hoard with other hoards, we observed the biggest similarity with the results from the Sikirica I hoard.¹⁹

Most of the coins in the Klisurica hoard are those of the Rome mint (93.10%), while issues of eastern mints are represented with 6.90% (Table 4).²⁰ Issues of mints Emesa (19), Laodicea ad Mare (12), Laodicea ad Mare and Emesa (2) and Alexandria (1) appear among the coinage of Septimius Severus and his family members. After that, only issues of the Antioch mint are present, and we recorded them among the coins of Elagabalus (20), Severus Alexander (24), Gordian III (30) and Philip I (6). The ratio of denarii and antoniniani in the Klisurica hoard is 81% (denarii) against 19% (antoniniani). Antoniniani appear in the issues of Caracalla (6), Macrinus (1), Elagabalus (9), Gordian (268), Philip I (28) and Trajan Decius (1).

18 Considering the hoards that do not start or end with the issues of Septimius Severus or Maximinus I (because the start or end of thesauration cannot provide realistic data about the frequency of coins of particular rulers) the percentage of Caracalla's issues from his sole reign ranges from 3.14% to 4.77% (Klisurica, Sikirica I, Mehovine, Mezul II hoards) with the exception of the Supska II hoard, where this percentage is 8.10%. When we observe the ratio of issues of Septimius Severus and Caracalla (sole reign), we once again obtain approximately the same ratios in hoards: Klisurica (S. Severus 86% - Caracalla 14%), Supska II (84.6% - 15.4%), Sikirica I (86.5% - 13.5%) Mezul II (83% - 17%); on the other hand, there is a deviation in the scattered hoard of Mehovine: S. Severus 59% - Caracalla 61% (cf. Borić-Brešković and Vojvoda 2012, 24-25; Borić-Brešković and Vojvoda 2013, 14-15; Borić-Brešković and Vojvoda 2016, 12-13; Vasić 2019, 12-13). Table 4 – Frequency of the Rome and eastern mints in the Klisurica hoard

The first part of the find consists of denarii spanning the period from Vespasian to Septimius Severus, which most probably represent the relics of some older savings. The oldest specimens in the Klisurica hoard are two denarii of Vespasian of the same type with the reverse legend COS ITER TR POT (Pax) (RIC II.1, No. 29) dated in 70 (Cat. 1-2). Besides these, two denarii of the same ruler are present in the hoard (Cat. 3-4) which belong to the chronological period between 72 and 74 AD. Following are the less frequent issues of Titus (Cat. 5) and Domitian (Cat. 6) which are dated in 80 and 81. The coinage of Trajan and Hadrian is present with three denarii each (Cat. 7-9 and 10-12), while issues of Antoninus Pius and his family members are somewhat less numerous (16) and consist of denarii minted for the issuer (Cat. 13-19), Faustina I (Cat. 20-26), Marcus Aurelius (Cat. 27) and Faustina II (Cat. 28). As for Marcus Aurelius and Lucius Verus, the denarii of Faustina II and one consecrative denarius of Antoninus Pius (Cat. 29-36) belong to their reign, besides their individual issues. The coinage of Commodus is present in a significantly larger number (Cat. 37-61) compared with his predecessors and are dated in the period from 182 to 192 AD. Rarer issues of Didius Iulianus and Claudius Albinus are present in the Klisurica hoard with one and four denarii, respectively (Cat. 62, 63-66).

Coinage of Septimius Severus and members of his family are present with 285 denarii of the Rome mint divided into 57 issues, spanning the period from 193 to 211 AD (Tables 5-6), and with 34 denarii from the eastern mints, the issues of which span the period from 193 to 203 (Table 7). In this period, coins of all members of the Severus family are present in the Klisurica hoard. The brief period of the joint reign of Caracalla and Geta has been registered with three issues, i.e. 5 denarii, and Caracalla's sole reign with the additional 11 issues and 47 denarii and antoniniani (Tables 5-6). Overall, the issues of the Rome mint, including the reign of Septimius Severus and Caracalla, account for 337 coin specimens (Tables 5-6).

Table 7 – Frequency of eastern mints during the reign of Septimius Severus in the Klisurica hoard

The Klisurica hoard contains coins of every year in the reign of Septimius Severus and Caracalla, from 193 to 217 AD, of the Rome mint. During this period, the biggest inflow of coins into the hoard was registered from 195 to 198, with as many as 145 denarii. The years 200-201 and 205 can be singled out with a higher inflow of coins, followed by 207 and 213, while others are present with 3 to 10 specimens (Table 6). In his study of the Mezul II hoard, Miloje Vasić performed thorough analyses of the inflow of coins of Septimius Severus and Caracalla in eight Balkan hoards.²¹ In the cumulative graphs of all hoards analysed by years, he obtained several years with a maximum inflow of coins (Graph 2).²² The highest inflow in the 8 analysed hoards was registered in the period from 200 to 203, then in 211-215 and in 207-209. The results obtained by means of an analysis of the same data from the Klisurica hoard show different results (Graph 3), according to which the highest inflow was in 197 and 198 AD (49 and 44 pieces) (Table 6).

21 M. Vasić analysed the following hoards: Mezul II, Mehovine, Belgrade, Ravna, Jablanica, Plevna, Reka Devnia and Taga, cf. Vasić 2019, 20-25, Tables 12-25.

22 Vasić 2019, 26, Graph 3.

The low frequency of coins from 193 in the Klisurica hoard, as well as in all Balkan hoards analysed by M. Vasić, is unusual, considering that Septimius Severus passed the Danube limes on his way eastwards,²³ at the start of July of that year. As for the Rome mint in the Klisurica hoard, the same inflows were registered for the years 194 and 193, but if we add to that the issues of the eastern mints (Table 7), the inflow could be significantly higher. However, we cannot claim with certainty what the exact individual inflow was from the eastern mints during 194 and 195, since the coins were mainly dated to the chronological sequence of both years (except one denarius of the Laodicea ad Mare mint) (Table 7). According to M. Vasić, the inflow of issues of eastern mints dated in 194 was a consequence of the subsequent inflow of those coins into the Balkans. He believed that the high inflow of Laodicea issues during 196/197 was the result of the passage of Septimius Severus with the army along the Danube limes in 196. The military brought along not only contemporary coins, but also those minted in 193-194 AD.²⁴

It is well-known that Septimius Severus was returning westwards in spring 196 and that he proclaimed Caracalla caesar in Viminacium on that occasion. However, the year 196 is not prominent in the Klisurica hoard – it even drops compared with 195. It is certain that each visit of the emperor envisaged immense preparations, which increased the amount of coins in circulation.²⁵ On the other hand, it is possible that the passage of the emperor with the army along the Danube limes did not have a large effect on the southern parts of Moesia Superior (Klisurica), in comparison with its northern parts, and that this was why we did not observe an increased inflow of coins in 196.

The highest inflow in the Klisurica hoard is recorded in the years 197 and 198. This period coincides with the proclamation of Caracalla as augustus and Geta as caesar, which definitely resulted in higher issues of programme types in all mints, and therefore in an overall increase of the amount of coins in circulation in the Empire. As one more possible reason, M. Vasić cited the reopening of the eastern question and the passage of the army eastwards along the Danube limes.²⁶ The next larger inflow of coins in the Klisurica hoard was registered in 200-201, which could, once again, be connected with the passage of the emperor through the Balkan provinces in spring 202. An increased inflow of coins could also be a result of the marking of Severus' decennalia, Caracalla's marriage or other official events in that year.²⁷

The years 205 and 207 follow with the intensity of inflow in the Klisurica hoard. In comparing our data with that obtained by M. Vasić, we observed a greater deviation in the inflow of coins between 205 and 210 AD (Table 8). A balance in the distribution of coins was observed in the example of Balkan hoards analysed by Vasić for that period, with 209 being prominent. Significant differences were observed in the Klisurica hoard, where the biggest inflow was recorded in 205, far greater than the average in Balkan hoards, and then in 207, but with a somewhat smaller difference. On the other hand, a major drop in inflow was registered in the Klisurica hoard from 208 to 210, compared with Balkan hoards. Only the inflow in 208 was within the limits of the average.

Table 8 – Inflow of coins in the Klisurica hoard in 205-210, compared with data of M. Vasić (Vasić 2019, 34, Table 30)

During Caracalla's sole reign, we registered one more significant inflow of coins in the Klisurica find – in 213 (Table 6). In connection with this period, we once again found a certain discrepancy in comparison with the Balkan hoards, where a greater inflow than average was recorded in 215 than in 213, although they were not as drastic as in the previous period. Vasić interpreted the increase of coins in circulation in 213 and 214 with the tour of the Pannonian, Moesian and Dacian limes by Caracalla and Julia Domna in 214.²⁸

The issues of Macrinus include 6 denarii (Cat. 440-445) and one antoninianus (Cat. 446) minted for the emperor, and two denarii minted for Diadumenian Caesar (Cat. 447-448), all from the mint of Rome.

Following are the far more numerous issues of Elagabalus (Cat. 449-686), his family members (Cat. 687-819) and one consecrative denarius of Caracalla (Cat. 820).²⁹ Antoniniani appear only in Elagabalus' issues (9), while all other specimens are denarii. Issues of the Antioch mint (20) also appear only with Elagabalus (Cat. 666-685), while coins of female family members originate entirely from the Rome mint. A large portion of Elagabalus' issues have not been precisely dated and his undated issues have been divided into three chronological phases (218-219, 219-220, 220-222).³⁰ Their frequency, as well as that of rarer dated issues of Julia Paula from 220 AD (Cat. 687-707), Aquilia Severa from 221-222 AD (Cat. 708-715), are given in the following table (Table 9).³¹

28 Vasić 2019, 35, n. 54.

29 It is still not completely clear when the consecrative denarius of Caracalla was minted. According to RIC IV/2, p. 128, No. 717, it was minted under Severus Alexander in 222. According to BMC V, ccxxxi, 531, No. 7, it was minted under Elagabalus in 218. In the catalogue of the Klisurica hoard, this denarius is placed at the end of the issues of Elagabalus, as the earliest possible date of minting.

30 Cf. Vasić 2019, 43-46, Tables 39-44.

31 Coins minted for Julia Maesa (Cat. 749-819) and Julia Soemia (Cat. 716-748) cannot be dated more precisely within the period from 218 to 222, so these specimens have not been considered (33 + 71 = 104 denarii). One hybrid specimen (Cat. 686) has also been excluded for the same reason.

Table 9 – Frequency of the issues of Elagabalus and female family members in the Klisurica hoard

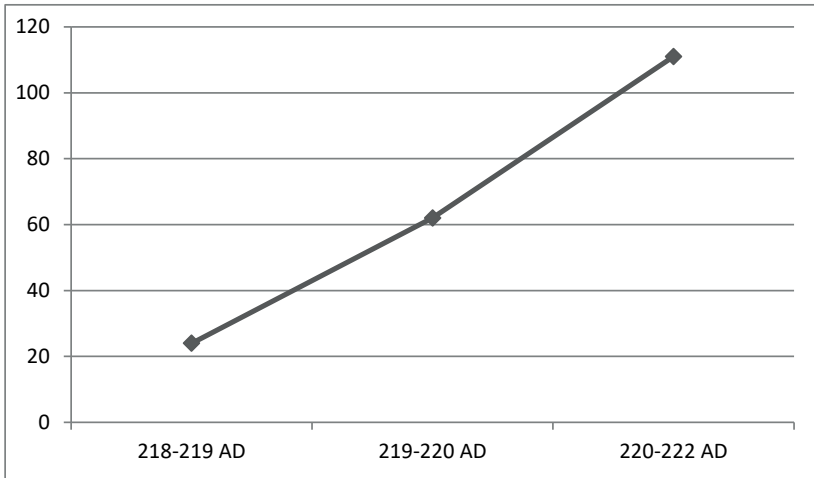

In his extensive study in 2019, Miloje Vasić analysed the inflow of Elagabalus' coins in 10 Balkan hoards.³² From that analysis, he obtained different results and divided the hoards into three groups: those showing an increase from 218/219 to 220/222 (Mezul II, Belgrade, Mehovine, Taga, Reka Devnia); an increase from 218/219 towards 219/220 and a decline in 220/222 (Ravna, Glibovac, Plevna) and a decline from 218/219 in relation to 219/220 with a complete absence of issues of 220/222. (Smederevo, Jablanica).³³ Finally, in a joint table for all the analysed hoards, he obtained as the final result a gradual increase in the inflow of coins in the period from 218 to 222, and attributed the discrepancies in the second and third group to local factors that could not yet be explained.³⁴

In the context of Vasić's study, the inflow of Elagabalus' coins in the Klisurica hoard for non-dated issues (chronological phases: 218-219, 219-220, 220-222) would give the image of a constant increase from 218 to 222 (Table 9; Graph 4). However, if we observe only the sample of dated issues, we obtain a completely different picture (Table 9; Graph 5). A rapid increase is observed in 219 compared with 218. During 220, the inflow stays roughly the same as in previous years, while a rapid increase is recorded in 221 AD – 50% compared with 218 and 219. The end of Elagabalus' reign is marked in the Klisurica hoard by a rapid decrease in the inflow in 222. A justified question arises about whether the true picture of the inflow of coins during 222 AD is lost in the mass of coins that is shown as the group of 220-222 (111 pieces). It is obvious that this and similar questions would remain unanswered if Elagabalus' issues are not precisely dated.

Graph 5 – Dated issues of Elagabalus and family members in the Klisurica hoard

Following are numerically the most frequent issues of Severus Alexander and female family members in the Klisurica hoard. They are 423 denarii (Cat. 821-1243), 353 of which belong to issues of Severus Alexander, five were minted for Orbiana and 65 for Julia Mamaea (Table 1). The denarii of Orbiana and Julia Mamaea were minted in Rome, while 328 denarii of Severus Alexander originated in the Rome mint, 24 in Antioch and one hybrid specimen is attributed to an unknown eastern mint.³⁵ The distribution of issues of the Rome mint is given in Table 10, and that of the Antioch mint in Table 11.

³⁵ This hybrid is excluded from further calculations because it has not been precisely dated.

Table 12 - Frequency of issues of the Rome and Antioch mints for Severus Alexander and female family members, by year

Graph 6 - Frequency of issues of the Rome and Antioch mints for Severus Alexander and female family members, by year

It is clear from the above mentioned that the initial year of the reign of Severus Alexander was marked by the highest inflow of coins into the Klisurica hoard, both for the emperor and for Julia Mamaea (Table 12; Graph 6). This fact also remains unchanged when we observe the Rome and Antioch mints separately (66 + 19 pieces) (Tables 10-11). Issues of the Antioch mint are only present during the first two years of the reign, 222 and 223 AD, with a significantly greater inflow in the first year (Table 11). Overall, the inflow of coins was falling in 223 and 224, rose again as of 225 and, in 226, a second large inflow was recorded (Graph 6). It was falling again by 229, then rose the next year, in 230, and grew until 232, when the third large inflow into the hoard was recorded. There was almost no inflow after that. Issues from the years 233 and 235 are completely absent, while the inflow in 234 was insignificant (Graph 6). As the conclusion, it is a fact that the inflow of coins of Severus Alexander to the Klisurica hoard existed, from being the highest in 222, with increases and declines, all the way to 232 after which there is the sharpest drop in inflow.

In his study, M. Vasić analysed in the same way the inflow of coins of Severus Alexander in 10 Balkan hoards (Mezul II, Mehovine, Belgrade, Vlajića Brdo I, Glibovac, Ravna, Skopje, Taga, Plevna and Reka Devnia).³⁶ The data he obtained in Table 53 is presented here in the following graph:

Graph 7 – Cumulative graph of 10 Balkan hoards (according to Vasić 2019, 53, Table 53)

³⁶ Vasić 2019, 53, Table 53.

It clearly stems from graphs 6 and 7 that the inflow of coins of Severus Alexander into the Klisurica hoard was almost identical to the inflows in the 10 analysed Balkan hoards. In order to confirm this data, M. Vasić compared it with the hoards analysed by Carson in BMC VI (except the already analysed hoards of Plevna and Reka Devnia, Carson included several hoards from Britain, one from Cologne and one from Hungary)³⁷ and the hoards from the territory of the province of Dacia (except the mentioned hoard from Ţaga, Vasić also analysed the following hoards: Jieţ-Popi, Bîrca I, Bîrca II, Olteni and Leurda).³⁸ In the overall observation of the Balkan hoards, the hoards which Carson included and those from the province of Dacia, Vasić reached the same results about the inflow of coins of Severus Alexander, which was obviously not conditioned by local events, but was part of a broader, general monetary policy of that time.

Besides all that has been mentioned, Vasić also performed an extensive analysis of data about the inflow of coins and the historic events that affected it, and of which we will make a brief overview, here.³⁹ The high inflow of coins during 222 and 223 is linked with significant reforms (including in monetary policy), initiated by the praetorian prefect, Domitianus Ulpianus, and his assassination in 224 led to a significant disturbance in the state treasury and mint, which reflected as a great decline in the inflow of coins in that year. On the other hand, the large inflow of 226 is explained with the appearance of a large number of special issues (besides regular ones) minted to mark the passing of Julia Maesa, the marriage of Alexander and Orbiana, Alexander's second consulate and the construction of the Nymphaeum. In all the analysed hoards, especially the Danubian ones, the large inflow of coins in 232 is illogical. The year before, in 231, the emperor passed through this region on the way to the east and rallied the troops in the Danubian region and, after the Persian campaign, the troops returned to their home camps in 233, and it would have been more logical for a greater inflow to be recorded in one of those years. The only explanation at this time could be that coins minted in 232 arrived in the Danubian region when the troops returned from the east, where they received them as salary. It is even harder to explain the exceptionally low frequency of issues of 233 and 234 AD, which is characteristic not only of the Balkan provinces, but also of those in the west.⁴⁰ This absence of coins in circulation remains an unsolved issue for the time being, especially bearing in mind that Alexander celebrated the triumph against the Persians in Rome in 233, and went to Mainz in 234 because of an attack by the Alamanni. Since he was killed in February/March 235, the absence of issues of this year can be explained with the short time for minting and distribution in 235 until the time of his death.

The reign of Maximinus Thrax is registered in the Klisurica hoard with 56 denarii (Cat. 1244-1299), which is 3.38% of the entire find (Tables 1-2; Graph 1), while the annual inflow amounts to as much as 18.18 (Table 3). At the same time, this is the highest annual inflow of coins of Maximinus I registered in hoards from the present-day Serbia. The first year of his reign is present in the Klisurica hoard in the highest percentage (Table 13). The inflow in 236 declined significantly and then increased slightly in 237 AD.

The reason for a greater inflow in 235 lies perhaps in a major increase in the troops' salaries. Namely, immediately after being proclaimed emperor by the troops, Maximinus I doubled their salaries, promised lavish gifts and abolished fines and convictions.⁴¹ In order to secure large amounts of money for the military, he first directed his attention to the aristocracy and the seizing of private property and, when that turned out to be insufficient, he began looting public property. Many people were impoverished by his brutal measures and a large number of them were killed after illegal court proceedings. This terror soon led to civil revolt, as well as that of the military, amid the complaints of relatives and fellow citizens.⁴² Rebellions broke out in Rome and in Africa and, in an attempt to reach Rome with the military, Maximinus was killed by his troops near Aquileia in mid-April 238.⁴³

In the relevant catalogues we have no record for one denarius of Maximinus I from the Klisurica hoard (Cat. 1299). Its obverse IMP MAXIMINVS PIVS AVG belongs to issues dated in the interval 235-236, while the reverse legend P M TR P IIII COS P P refers the specimen as 4th issue, struck 238 before April [BMC]. Besides mentioned differences, the reverse image (emperor standing left by lighted altar with patera in right hand),⁴⁴ is unknown in Maximinus coinage as well as to listed hybrid coins of Maximinus I with reverses of Severus Alexander.⁴⁵ It is most similar to the reverse type of Severus Alexander, with the same legend, but here the emperor still holds a scroll in his left hand.⁴⁶

The extremely brief reign of Balbinus during three months of 238 was recorded in the Klisurica hoard with four denarii (Cat. 1300-1303) of three different types.

Following are issues of Gordian III, which are present with 322 coin specimens (Cat. 1304-1625), of which 54 denarii (16.78%) and 268 antoniniani (83.22%) (Table

Belonging to issues of the Rome mint are 292 pieces (90.70%), and 30 of the Antioch mint (9.30%). The distribution of issues and officinae of Gordian III in the Klisurica hoard is given in the following table (Table 14).⁴⁷

Graph 8 – Inflow of coins of the Rome mint for Gordian III in the Klisurica hoard

47 We have adhered to the division of issues of the Rome mint into three officinae, put forward by S. Eady and slightly corrected by V. Kondić, which M. Vasić also adhered to (cf. Vasić 2019, 64).

48 One antoninianus (Cat. 1595), which RIC IV/3 did not register (possible hybrid?) is excluded from the distribution of issue.

Denarii and antoniniani of issue 4 dated in the period 241-243 are by far the most numerous.⁴⁹ This is the general rule, confirmed in the analyses of additional 13 Moesian hoards. As was observed earlier, the fourth issue of the Rome mint is the most voluminous, central issue of Gordian's reign, which was marked by a new policy, created and directed by the praetorian prefect, Timisitheus.⁵⁰ Compared with the analysed Moesian hoards, the Klisurica find shows a lower presence of issues 1/2 (hoards of Moesia Superior 13.50 against Klisurica 10.65%), but a higher inflow of issue 3 (21.75 against 24.74%). The otherwise most frequently present issue 4 greatly exceeds the average in the hoards from Moesia Superior (43.21 against 52.58%). On the other hand, issue 5 is present in Klisurica in a far lower percentage (21.54 against 12.03%). Generally, there is a constant increase in the inflow of coins in Klisurica from 238 to 243 and, after that, a notable drop in the last year of the reign that falls back to the level from the start of the reign (Graph 8).

As mentioned, there are 54 denarii of Gordian III in the Klisurica hoard, which represents a large share and places this find in the third place in Moesia Superior according to the frequency of denarii, behind Niška Kamenica and Smederevo.⁵¹ Denarii appear from issue 3, officina 3 (Cat. 1394-1406), all specimens of the marriage issue are denarii (Cat. 1407-1428) and then in issue 4, officinae 1-3 (Cat. 1469-1475, 1518-1522, 1553-1559). In his extensive analysis of the frequency of denarii of Gordian III in the hoards of western and Balkan provinces, M. Vasić came to a result that shows the highest presence of denarii in the hoards of Moesia Superior and Inferior (a total of 73.18%).⁵² Vasić found the reason why the denarii of Gordian III arrived in the Balkans in greater measure in the military operations of the governor of Moesia Inferior, Menophilus in 241 and the praetorian prefect, Timisitheus, in 242, against the barbarians. Besides, it is believed that the passage of the emperor along the Danube limes on the way to the Persian theatre of war in that year additionally contributed to this phenomenon, which precipitated an increase of coins in circulation in Moesia Superior and Inferior. These events coincided with the issue of denarii during 240 and the first half of 241, in three successive time frames.⁵³

The issues of Philip I in the Klisurica hoard consist of 28 antoniniani (Cat. 1626-1653), of which 24 belong to the issuer (Cat. 1626-1649) and two each to Otacilia Severa (Cat. Nos.1650-1651) and Philip II (Cat. 1652-1653). Twenty-two issues of the Rome mint and six from Antioch were registered, wherein all specimens of the latter were minted for Philip I. The distribution of issues and officinae is given in the following table (Table 15).

Table 15 – Frequency of issues of Philip I and members of his family in the Klisurica hoard

The inflow into the hoard generally falls in Klisurica after Gordian III, which is confirmed by a small number of specimens of Philip I and his family. The highest inflow was recorded in the first year of the reign and first issue (244), and then constantly fell (Table 15). Vasić interpreted the otherwise common phenomenon of the absence of coins of the Rome mint from 249, with the rebellion and usurpation of Pacatianus, which caused a lower inflow of coins from Rome.⁵⁴ However, our find also lacks a single specimen of the secondary imperial mint in Viminacium, which is probably the consequence of a halt in regular thesaurisation.

The Klisurica hoard ends with one specimen of Trajan Decius (Cat. 1654), representing the terminus post quem of the find. It is an antoninianus of the Rome mint with the obverse legend IMP C M Q TRAIANVS DECIVS AVG and the reverse VBERITAS AVG (RIC IV/3, p. 123, No. 28b). In the introductory text of RIC, this antoninian is determined as the second issue of the Rome mint,⁵⁵ while it is listed in Group II in the catalogue and dated in a broader period of 249-251.⁵⁶ M. Vasić determined this specimen as the third issue and dated it in 250, and this is the opinion that we accept here.⁵⁷

Besides the hoard from the village of Klisurica, seven other hoards that were deposited during the reign of Trajan Decius have been registered in Moesia Superior so far. One in the north of the province (Mezul I), while most of them originate from its eastern part (Ratiaria II, General Marinovo (?), Gradec I, Graničak (?), Kosovo II (?) and Rakovica).⁵⁸ The analogous hoard Mezul I ends with one antoninianus each 54 Vasić 2005, 19; Pacatianus' usurpation can be dated from April 21st, 248, while the usurper's death is dated around April in 249 (Vasić 2012, 9, n. 1, 8).

55 RIC IV/3, p. 111-112.

56 RIC IV/3, p. 121.

57 Vasić 2012, p. 79.

58 Mezul I (cf. Borić-Brešković and Vojvoda 2019, 187-241); Ratiaria II, General Marinovo, Gradec I, Graničak, Kosovo II and Rakovica (cf. Върбанов 2017, 2-4, Nos. 2, 8, 9, 13, 17, 22). For three hoards (General Marinovo, Graničak and Kosovo II) from the territory of the present-day Bulgaria and eastern part of Moesia Superior, it remains unclear whether they truly end with the specimens of Trajan Decius or Trebonianus Gallus, because of Trajan Decius and Herennia Etruscilla, wherein the first is dated more broadly, in the interval 249-251, and the other in 250-251.⁵⁹ As for the hoards in the eastern part of Moesia Superior, from the territory of present-day Bulgaria, only the names of the issuers of coins or their family members that they end with are recorded in literature, and we do not possess information about their typology.⁶⁰

The reasons for depositing these hoards are linked with the tumultuous events at the end of the reign of Philip I, Pacatianus' usurpation and the military operations Trajan Decius conducted against the barbarians in the Balkans over the period of two years.⁶¹ Although Moesia Superior was not directly exposed to barbarian raids in that period, the overall uncertainty caused by war in the neighbouring provinces and constant internal turmoil undoubtedly brought unease, not just among the military, but also among the population.

Similar to the Mezul I hoards, the thesauration of the find from Klisurica lasted for some 50 years (Septimius Severus – Gordian III; Graph 1) and represented the savings of two or three generations. A longer thesauration period and a large number of denarii compared with the antoniniani in certain hoards is viewed as the property of one family and is linked with agricultural properties.⁶² The discovery site of the Klisurica hoard, in the immediate vicinity of a villa rustica and the important road communication Lissus – Naissus – Ratiaria, may lead to the conclusion that the hoard belonged to the owners of the property, who were farmers and cattle-breeders. It is known that agricultural properties were formed close to roads in order for produce to be transported more easily, and this connection between the villae rusticae and roads has been archaeologically confirmed for certain coin hoards from the areas of Moesia Superior, Pannonia Inferior and Dalmatia.⁶³

The current level of exploration of the Toplica area, with registered villae rusticae, the mining area in the hinterlands and the important route still indicate the primarily economic importance of this area in Roman times. All that leads to the conclusion that the area was populated by people who worked the land and raised cattle, as well as mined for ores in the hinterlands, and that trade was lively along the Lissus – Naissus – Ratiaria route. The large hoard from Klisurica of 1,655 denarii and antoniniani, the most part of which is based on and represents savings over a course of 50 years, testifies about the large circulation of coins in this area in the first half of the 3rd century.

the hoards were not published integrally. In several publications from the past 60 years, their composition was given differently, and we allow for a possibility, albeit with significant reserve, that they do end with specimens of Trajan Decius. The mentioned earlier literature was cited in its entirety in Върбанов 2017, 3, No. 8 (General Marinovo), No. 13 (Graničak), 4, No. 17 (Kosovo II).

59 Borić-Brešković and Vojvoda 2019, 195-196.

60 Ratiaria II ends with just one antoninianus of Etruscilla, without coins of Trajan Decius; Gradec I has 83 specimens of Trajan Decius and 27 of Etruscilla; Rakovica has one antoninianus of Trajan Decius; about General Marinovo, Graničak and Kosovo II, cf. supra n. 58.

CATALOGUE

INTRODUCTORY NOTES

The catalogue is arranged chronologically according to the reigns of the Roman emperors, and in the context of individual emperors, by mints and dates of minting. Each catalogue number includes the obverse and reverse legends and images, and contains the standard basic data, arranged according to the following criteria: the catalogue numbers referring to the individual reigning emperor, and the members of imperial family, living or deified; technical data about the coin (weight, diameter and axis), the citation according to the standard literature together with additional notes on coin, the minting year, and the inventory number (The National Museum of Serbia collection). The notes contain additional informations on coins and indicating possible aberrations from examples documented in the standard literature. The date of minting of individual coins follows the chronology based on the relevant cited literature: RIC II; RIC II.1; RIC II.3; RIC III; RIC IV/1-3; Hill 2001; Vasić 2012. All the coins are presented in photographic form, and their numeration on the plates is coordinated with the catalogue numbers.

ОСТАВА ДЕНАРА И АНТОНИНИЈАНА ИЗ СЕЛА КЛИСУРИЦЕ КОД ПРОКУПЉА (ЈУЖНА СРБИЈА)

РЕЗИМЕ

Остава Клисурица нађена је 1986. године у близини истоименог села, на планинском превоју Гребач, на јужној падини Малог Јастрепца у близини Прокупља. Састоји се од 1.655 денара (1.341) и антонинијана (314) у распону од Веспасијана до Трајана Деција (Табела 1). Заступљен је новац 20 владара и чланова њихових породица, при чему су у највећем броју присутна ковања Александра Севера и Елагабала, следе издања Гордијана III и Септимија Севера, док је новац осталих владара присутан у далеко мањем проценту (Табела 2; Графикон 1).

Terminus post quem оставе Клисурица даје антонинијан римске ковнице с аверсном легендом IMP C M Q TRAIANVS DECIVS AVG и реверсом VBERITAS AVG (RIC IV/3, 123, no. 28b). Овај антонинијан је у уводном тексту RIC-а одређен као друга емисија римске ковнице, док је у каталожном делу сврстан под „група II“ и шире датован у период 249-251. година. Овде прихватамо опредељење М. Р. Васића који исти примерак распоређује у 3. емисију ковнице Рим и датује у 250. годину.

Већ досадашњи степен истражености Топличког краја с регистрованим вилама рустикама, природним ресурсима, рудничком облашћу у залеђу и трасом важног пута Lissus – Naissus – Ratiaria указује на економски значај ове области у римско доба. Све то упућује на закључак да је област била насељена становништвом које се бавило пољопривредом и сточарством, разним видовима занатских делатности, трговином, али и експлоатацијом руда у залеђу. Велика остава из Клисурице, која највећим делом представља уштеђевину сакупљену током 50-так година, сведочи о знатној циркулацији новца на овом подручју у првој половини 3. века.
